MANY BALLOTS WERE REJECTED

UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER OF BALLOTS FOUND TO BE DEFECTIVE IN YESTERDAY'S ELECTION—ALL BALLOTS ON WHICH THERE WERE ERRORS WERE REJECTED—HOME RULERS TALKING OF CONTEST.

Never before have there been so many rejected ballots in an election in Hawaii as there were yesterday. The innovations at the polling booths appeared to confuse a large number of the voters and as a result the judges found errors right and left, which caused them to throw out the ballots. Owing to the condition in which the returns were made by a majority of the election officers, it is impossible to ascertain how many votes were thrown out, but the number is believed to be over 500.

Under the ruling of the Attorney General, that any ballot having a distinguishing mark, or an error in voting for any office, must be rejected entire, the election officers rejected every ballot on which there was a vote for too many officers, or any unnecessary markings or mutilations.

CANNOT CONTEST

ELECTION LAWS SAID TO LACK PROVISIONS UNDER WHICH A CONTEST IS POSSIBLE—DEFEATED CANDIDATES WHOSE VOTE IS CLOSE SAID TO BE UNABLE TO HAVE A CONTEST.

There is no provision for contesting an election in Hawaii, it is stated, and the candidates of yesterday whose defeat is by so close a margin that they want to make a contest will not be able to do anything in the matter. The Organic Act repealed the old Hawaiian provisions for contests of elections, say attorneys who have been investigating the matter, and thus made the reports of the election officers and the official returns absolute and final.

There is a provision in the County bill itself for contests of elections, but the County Act is not in effect yet, and hence it is claimed that there is no way for defeated candidates to make a contest.

RESULTS OF THE VOTING

HARD FOUGHT CONTEST IN OAHU—CLOSE RESULTS IN NEARLY ALL OFFICES VOTED FOR—"JIMMIE" BOYD DEFEATED, AND BOOTH, WILCOX, KALAUOKALANI CAYPLESS, NOTLEY AND ASHFORD SNOWED UNDER.

The first County election on Oahu was a very hard fought contest. It was long after midnight before anyone was certain of any of the offices. The Home Rulers showed increased strength at most points and it was a close call for the Republican leaders. They won the Sheriff, Clerk, Auditor, Attorney and Treasurer and five Supervisors, however, all by narrow margins, while the Home Rulers elected their Assessor and Surveyor and two Supervisors.

The contest was a somewhat bitter one all through the day and the beginning of the count found large crowds traveling to and fro about the city to ascertain results. Brown and Wise ran along doubtfully until after midnight. Of the victors Rawlins led Caypleless easily, Murray had a sure thing for clerk and Damon forged ahead of Booth in a manner that left him little to worry about. Damon received the largest vote of any candidate running. Nakuina helped Murray a bit by running for clerk, but the result shows that Murray could give Kalauokalani all Nakuina's votes and still be a winner.

The first returns that came in were good for the Republicans and there was cheerfulness at the headquarters. Pratt beat Iaukea in the latter's home precinct and Brown ran even with Wise in the fighting seventh until late in the evening. By eleven o'clock matters began to look very doubtful, and from that time on until the completion of the count there was plenty of uncertainty and excitement.
